The Realm of Compatibility

What is so fascinating about the realm of Compatibility is the unlimited access to uncertainties, possibilities, and probabilities. A state of inquiry, intuition, and imagination.

Where limitations of bias, prejudices, and discrimination, and often, even opinions are far in the distance of the rear-view mirror—ancient, old, and tired. And most of all, outdated.

A domain where differences appear as similarities since they are flip sides of the same coin in their endless rotations. Where answers immediately create an endless array of questions. Hence, the realization that the engine is really questions, and answers are pauses for breath catching.

The confusing experience of a disarray of pieces that eventually come together as an illuminating completed puzzle—effortlessly.

The relief that comes with letting go, rather than holding on to that which no longer exists. To no-person's land. And the sudden appearance of the next miracle—but only after completely letting-go of that which no longer exists!

Relationship, communication, and collaboration are all seamless expressions of oneness, and taken for granted in Compatibilityland—as part of the price of admission.

Shakespeare, Hamlet, “...to sleep, perchance to dream....” the doorway to unlimited expressions of creativity, caring, and performance.

Welcome to the realm of Compatibility.
